Neck Fur Retains Prestige

By JULIA BOTTOMLEY

Bravo for the girl who has remained constant to her fur neck-piece throughout torrid summer days. Now is the time of her reward, for autumn breezes do begin to blow, and what so "comfy" as well as satisfying to her vanity on a fickle fall day, as a good-looking fur about shoulder and throat.

To say that these fashionable neckpieces are "foxy" describes them in more ways than one. From the modish standpoint they are all of that. When it comes to the fur itself every branch of the fox family tree is represented in autumn's style parade. There is pointed fox in all its glory, blue fox, red, platinum and beige. As to white fox it holds its own triumphantly, regardless of the fact that it has been doing strenuous duty the whole summer through.

Imagination cannot picture anything more "swanky" in the way of a fall costume or suit enhanced with a flattering fox scarf. The autumn landscape will be crowded with just such.

A fox neckpiece never fails to enrich the dressy three-piece ensemble as this picture so charmingly proves.

With the smart tweed suit of autumn vogue, there is nothing so swagger as a handsome fox fur piece, preferably in beige or in platinum.

Perhaps the newest in fox fur pieces are the double or twin animal types. These two-in-one models are necessarily luxuriously long, joining as they do, two furs at the back of the neck, which is in keeping with the trend toward heavily furred effects for fall and winter.

In neckpieces there is also a marked tendency to wear sable. This fur, by the way, is receiving marked attention in the styling of garments of distinction.

Flat-fur coats richly collared and cuffed with fox are conspicuously present in advance style showings. (Copyright, 1927)

TO THE BOUNDARIES OF THE NATION AND BEYOND FROM YOUR TELEPHONE BY LONG DISTANCE

Your voice to millions

THE telephone has truly become a symbol of universal service. The far flung network of voice highways, connecting 18,000,000 telephones in over 70,000 cities and towns throughout the United States, has woven the fabric of friendly business and social relations, not only in the cities themselves out has bridged the distance between cities and made America a nation of neighbors.

And now your voice, from your own telephone may travel to any one of millions of people in the United States, England, Scotland or Wales—with speed, economy and satisfaction.

CHILD'S LUNCH BOX
"Good to the last crumb!" It takes a wise parent and a healthy child to bring forth this tribute to the school box lunch.

Many schools can furnish only one hot dish for the children—some none at all. This requires planning and work for mother to provide an adequate noon meal in a box. Even one hot dish is a great help. The box lunch can then supplement the hot dish. If she can know when the school serves cream soups and purees, lighter sandwiches of bread, butter, lettuce and celery, fruit, cooked or raw, with hard cookies or cup cakes and a bottle of milk will round out a sensible lunch. Unless milk-cocoa or milk are served at the school, the child should carry milk to school. Cooked fruits or any kind of liquid food packs well in one-half pint screw-top jars.

When the hot dish served at the school is a lighter soup or drink, heavier sandwiches of chopped eggs, meat, nuts or nut-butters with salad dressing and lettuce are better. Sweet sandwiches of chopped raisins, figs, dates and nuts are pleasing additions. Custards, junkets, blanc mange may be varied with cooked fruit for dessert. Food surprises of favorite dishes, cookies, bars of plain candy occasionally help to make the lunch box interesting.

The lunch box should be packed to please as well as to eat. Careful packing of sandwiches in wax paper prevents drying out or distasteful soaking of bread from juicy fruit. To line the box neatly and cover attractively with pretty paper, helps to keep interest in the box.

When the school does not serve a hot dish at lunch, the solution is a small thermos bottle carried in the box. One hot dish at least should be in the child's school lunch, whether brought from home or served at the school. His food digests more easily and he is more refreshed for his afternoon lessons. Chronic fatigue and under-nutrition are more easily prevented than corrected with adequate feeding at every meal along with other health habits.

Children show greater under-nutrition in rural districts than in urban and it is therefore apparent how important a well prepared school lunch is for the child to keep him in fit condition.—Christmas Seal Service.
